

EDWARD'S BODY TO LIE IN STATE

CARRIED TO WESTMINSTER HALL WITH MUCH POMP.
KINGS IN THE PROCESSION

Much Honor Paid To the Corpses Of the Dead Ruler of Great Britain.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, May 17.—The body of the late King Edward VII. was taken today from Buckingham Palace on the first stage of the journey to the grave, and now rests in state in Westminster Hall.

The procession passed through the double lines of soldiers, flanked by rows of policemen and of black garbed humanity.

Besides King George there were in the procession the Kings, Frederick of Denmark, Haakon of Norway, The Queen Mother Alexandra, Queen Mary and others of the royal family.

The caisson was borne on a gun carriage and as it passed soldiers and civilians stood with bowed heads. There was an entire absence of hostile, and decorum prevailed everywhere. Inside the palace the royal mourners were joining in a last sacred service, and this completed the caisson was prepared for removal to the gun carriage in waiting outside. One of the last acts of the Queen Mother was to place in the coffin a little emblem of love in the shape of a bunch of lilacs of the valley.

Westminster Hall, where the late King's remains will lie in state during the next two days, is the only section remaining of the great Westminster Palace, which was destroyed by fire in 1834, and is now used as a vestibule to the houses of Parliament. The hall was begun by William Rufus in 1097, and was destroyed by fire in 1291. In its present form it is the work of Richard II, who had the walls buttressed and the wooden roof added in 1398. The ceiling is one of the most remarkable specimens of timber architecture in existence, both as regards beauty and constructive skill. The hall has been the scene of many stirring events, and no other hall in all England is so rich in historical association. Here it was that Oliver Cromwell took the oath as lord protector of England, and here, too, was held the great coronation dinner, celebrating the coronation of George IV. The hall was for many years the center of the English law courts, and it was also used for great festivals, the lord mayors being sworn into office there for the last time in 1882.

KERBY GIVES HIS LATEST VERSION

GIVES INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE STORY FROM HIS NOTES.
TELLS OF LAWLER PAPERS

Says Ballinger Knew of the Document and Its Contents Was Promised—Job on Cleveland Paper.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

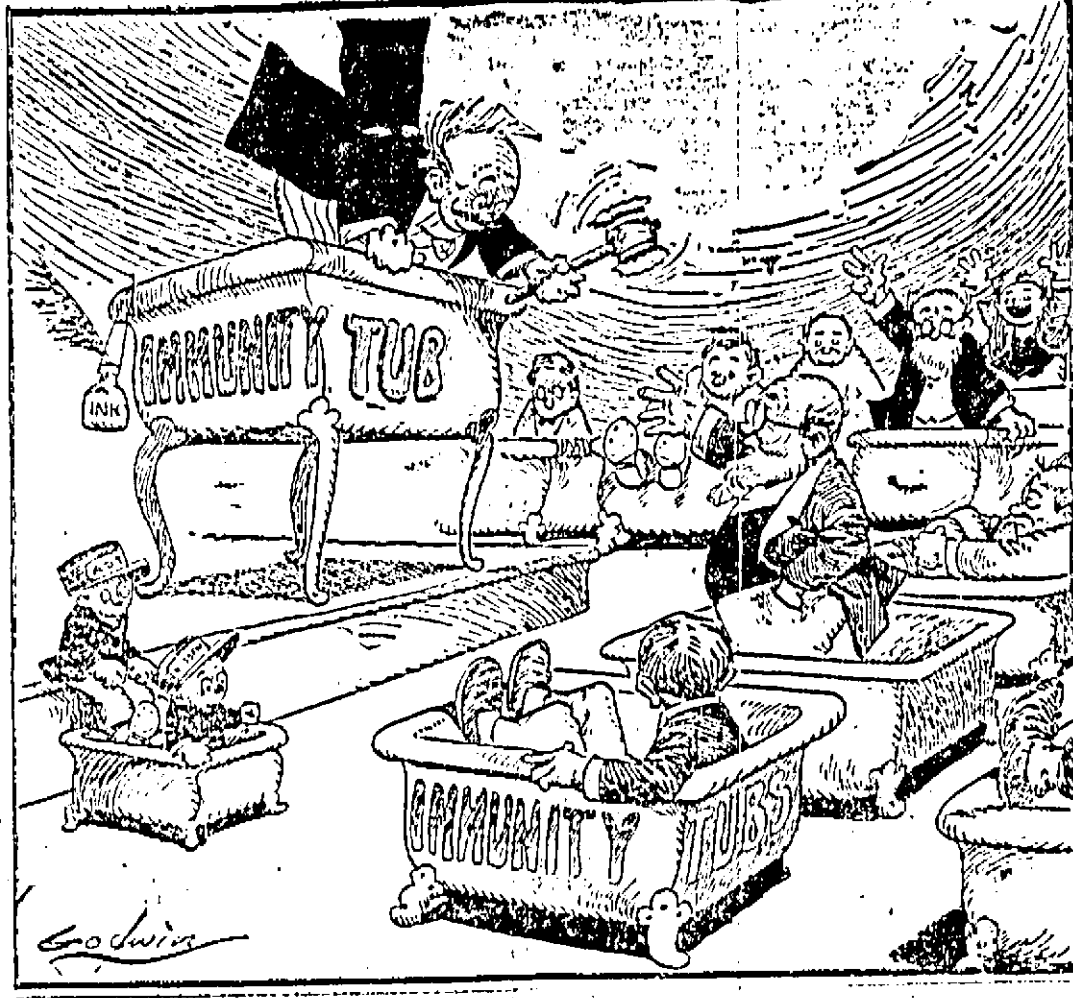

Washington, D. C., May 17.—Frederick M. Kerby, a discharged stenographer from the Interior department, took the witness stand today in the Ballinger-Pinchot hearing.

Kerby, testifying before the committee, said he first told the story he made public Saturday to former Secretary (Garfield) and Attorney Brandeis at Pynchot's home last February, and admitted he gave the story to a Cleveland newspaper man after being assured of a position on the newspaper should he be dismissed by Ballinger, which he said he expected in view of what had happened to Glavin. Kerby said he read Ballinger's testimony, that he knew nothing of the memorandum upon which the president's letter exonerating Ballinger and dismissing Glavin was based, and then decided to make public his story. He said he knew Ballinger had read at least a part of Lawler's memorandum. Kerby insisted that to his mind he had done nothing wrong in making public his notes of Lawler's deposition of the memorandum.

Afternoon Session.
At the afternoon session, Kerby read before the committee, letters of Secretary Ballinger to R. H. Thomson, City Engineer of Seattle, suggested to accompany C. W. Perkins of J. P. Morgan & Co. to inspect the Alaskan Mineral lands. Kerby said he believed Thomson was stated by Ballinger to become head of the reclamation service. Kerby also pointed out alleged inconsistencies in Ballinger's testimony regarding the Lawler memorandum. He said Ballinger knew all the circumstances in the preparation of the memorandum, and Lawler said to Kerby in his presence he had left a copy with the secretary.

ANXIOUS WORLD AWAITS TRANSIT

AT EARLY HOUR TOMORROW EVENING.
OF HALLEY SKY-WANDERER

Sensationalists Have Filled Minds Of Many With Dread—Astronomers
Anticipate No Evil Effect.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., May 17.—The passing, tomorrow of Halley's comet between the sun and the earth is an event awaited with unusual interest all over the world but by the lay folk as well. While the men behind the telescopes look forward to the transit of the comet merely with the intense interest evoked by any rare and scientifically important phenomenon in the sphere of astronomy, interest of the "unsentimental" masses is not altogether free from more or less fear of the possible consequences of the coming event. The authoritative statements that on May 18 the earth would pass through the tail of the comet, together with the fact that the divergent theories of the astronomers concerning the nature of the comet's tail confused the masses and led them to lend a certain amount of credence to the most absurd and alarming vagaries of ignorant and superstitious sensationalists, is responsible for the dread which some persons anticipate tomorrow's phenomenon.

Halley's comet, the transit of which will be observed tomorrow, moves in an eccentric and elliptical orbit around the sun. At the tremendous speed with which the comet travels it requires about seventy-five years to complete its course. This is not the first time that Halley's comet has been visible to the inhabitants of the earth but, what makes its visit this year of special interest to astronomical science is the fact that tomorrow the erratic wanderer of the skies which have never been observed before will present itself under conditions that make observations that may give a clue to the composition of the comet. The orbit of the comet apparently intersects that of the earth at two points. The first point of intersection was passed by the comet some time ago, the second will be reached in a few days. Having passed this portion the comet is now approaching the earth at a speed of about 1,900 miles a minute. Tomorrow it will reach not only the point of greatest proximity to the earth but also a position which brings it in direct line with the earth and the sun. As the comets tail, whatever may be its composition, is pointing away from the sun, it is quite probable that the earth will pass through the rarified portions of it. Astronomers and physicists have advanced many divergent theories as to the effect which the passing through the comet's tail may have upon the earth, but there is absolutely no reason to expect more than perhaps some slight modification of the atmospheric conditions, as a result of which the sun, at the time of the comet's transit, may appear yellowish in tint. Twice before this in comparatively recent times, the earth passed the tails of comets and the only phenomenon which indicated that fact was a similar haze, through which the sun appeared of a reddish tint.

Halley's comet was discovered by Edmund Halley, an English astronomer (born 1656 and died 1742) in 1705. Halley was the son of a soap manufacturer in London and received his education at Oxford. He developed a great love for astronomy and devoted himself to his favorite science. After leaving college he spent two years on the island of St. Helena, preparing a catalogue of the stars. In 1703 he became professor of geometry in Oxford and, while holding that position he discovered the comet named after him. He made careful computations upon the basis of which he maintained that his comet was identical with the comet observed by Apollonius in 1534, by Mepler and Longomontanus in 1607. He calculated the time which the comet consumed in completing its orbit at about seventy-five years and predicted that the comet would again be visible in 1758, which proved to be correct. In recognition of his valuable work in the field of astronomy Halley was appointed Astronomer Royal in 1721, which position he held to his death. His comet has been observed repeatedly since then, but never under more favorable conditions.

DJ LUBY

WASHING MACHINE

Clothes Pass Between Two Sets of Rollers and Get Well Rubbed.

The chief purpose of a washing machine is to rub the clothes thoroughly without injuring them in any way. Some of the machines that have been designed in recent years are hard on garments that pass through them, but this machine does not. It is designed to rub the clothes in a North Dakota man and not to tear them. This machine consists of a tub with a cylinder in the center and a roller on each side. The clothes are passed between the rollers and the cylinder, which are all operated by means of cogwheels that are turned by an inner cogwheel attached to the cylinder and operated by a crank. Two semicircular hands enclose these rollers, and along the inside of these hands are a lot of little rollers which revolve in an opposite direction to the inner rollers. As the clothes are rubbed over them by the forward motion of the latter, a garment is inserted in the mouth of the machine and the handle moved. The inner rollers engage it, and it is carried around the circle and "washed" thoroughly in the tub, but not in the literal sense.

COUNCIL GIVES TRACTION CASE FINAL QUIETUS

LEGAL FIGHT AGAINST STREET RAILWAY COMPANY DROPPED

SIDEWALKS TACKLED AGAIN

City Dads Take Important Action in Long and Spirited Meeting Last Night.

With startling unanimity, the common council, at its regular meeting last night, put a quietus on the legal proceedings instituted by City Attorney Maxfield against the Janesville Street Railway company by including the order authorizing him to take such steps as were necessary to compel them to improve their service, and in addition, made it plain that no further suits were to be commenced without the express authorization and sanction of the city dads. There was also a great deal of other important business transacted by the council and the aldermen were still waiting to present a number of motions when an order to adjourn was rushed through.

This action can hardly be classed as a surprise by those who are familiar with the complications of the traction middle. It was hardly thought probable that the council would instruct the city attorney to push the suits in view of the promise made by the new owners of the system to place the line in good condition as soon as possible and it pushed to the limit, as in the case of the Jackson St., having incident, abandon all attempts to comply with the wishes of the city. The general impression was that the suits already begun would be held in abeyance in order to give the company time to act but such radical action as dropping the suits altogether was something of a start.

Previous to the motion made by Alderman Dulla to discontinue proceedings before the city commission, statements were presented both by Attorney T. S. Nolan for the company and City Attorney Maxfield, that Mr. Nolan's having already been published in these columns. Neither was read in meeting but both were referred to the judiciary committee and undoubtedly Maxfield's communication contained a short resume of the city's proceedings against the traction company and stated just where the city and company stood before the actions were discontinued.

In his communication the city attorney suggested to the council the advisability of continuing the present action as it was started only with a view of hastening improvements and if the council were assured that this would be accomplished without legal steps the action might be dismissed.

Following the instructions of the council in ordering the action dismissed Mr. Maxfield mailed a letter to the state railroad commission this morning withdrawing the complaint thus leaving the field clear for the improvement of the line by the new owners and the expenditure of the ten thousand dollars authorized by the order of the court for such work.

Other important business, notably the effort of the present administration to do away with complaints regarding defective sidewalks, brought forth spirited discussions. Following the instructions given him at the last meeting, Street Commissioner H. C. Proctor presented the reports made by the inspectors, in each ward but owing to a slight misunderstanding, only two wards, the third and fifth took the plunge and ordered all the sidewalks condemned by the inspectors replaced. When the order was made that every sidewalk in the city be inspected, and those which needed repairs and those which should be replaced reported, it was evidently the purpose of the council to have every ward take action at the meeting last night. A detailed description of the property to be affected however, was lacking in the second, Aldermen Evans and Lowell wished to make a personal inspection before taking action with regard to the first while Aldermen Sheridan and Rehfeld were discretely quiet about the fourth. In consequence, the new walks and repairs were ordered only in the fifth and third wards and action delayed with reference to the other three.

Another action that will serve to occupy the city attorney in the absence of the street car suits, was authorized in connection with the present auction sale of Pypor and Knox's jewelry stock. Alderman Buchholz intimated that the firm were violating their promise not to sell any other than what stock they had on hand when the terms were granted. To protect other business interests, he moved that the city attorney be directed to investigate and if the firm were violating their auction permit, to institute proceedings against them and revoke the permit. The motion was carried unanimously.

During the course of the meeting, the stone crusher once more bobbed to the front and was the cause of some spirited remarks this time with reference to the committee that should have charge of the work. It was finally decided to place the crusher in operation on Tuesday, May 17 in charge of W. E. Dulla and have the highway committee assume general supervision of the work and receive the reports of the superintendent. The city clerk was also instructed to renew the insurance of $100,000 on the crusher for the year.

Among the purchases authorized was a new street grading machine for the highway department and a new adding machine for use in the offices of the city treasurer and city clerk. The order for the former prompted some remarks by Alderman Brown who wished to know whether or not the grader were absolutely necessary and, when assured by Aldermen Sheridan, Buchholz and Donahoe that the old machine was practically scrap, intimated that if the purchasing committee were authorized to go ahead and purchase whatever was needed without the aid of the council, there would soon be no need for the council at all. Alderman Dulla, however, made it plain that the purchasing committee would not act without due consideration and that the matter would be handled by them as carefully and much more expeditiously than the council could do it.

Two petitions, one from Hemming and Manning to transfer their saloon license committee and will probably be acted on after the customary presentation has been made. The latter petition, as well as permission to move the wooden building now on the corner, was granted. To clear away matters for the proposed transfer of the saloon license at 22 S. River St., the judiciary committee reported favorably on Finley's bond.

Bids for sprinkling the streets in front of the city's property and also for constructing sidewalks for the city during the coming year, were received and the contracts awarded. William Boos was given the contract for sprinkling on the west side and John J. Murphy for the east side for $205. There were four bids submitted for the sidewalk contracts and W. J. Hill, whose bid of $230,000 and $70 a square yard for cement work, was the lowest, was accepted. Other bidders were E. Rice, D. P. Grossman and John Laiz.

According to a motion made by Alderman Buchholz and carried without a dissenting vote, a new sewer will be constructed in sewer district No. 11, on N. Bluff St., from the present sewer on Prospect Ave., 175 feet north. The street assessment committee was directed to make the assessments, prepare the plans and specifications and receive bids for the work.

Expenditures authorized were the usual amount of bills including the bill of S. Hutchinson which was questioned at the last meeting, $1.50 to Bert Belter for papering the house owned by the city at the corner of Jackson and Wall streets; $75.41 to E. W. Fisher for hay and grain for the department; $23.52 to O. D. Cannon for work in the first and fifth wards and also $195.05 for curb and gutter work on W. Bluff St.

Public work ordered was the flushing of all sewers by the street commissioner, as ordered in October, 1909, the repairing of the building at the corner of Jackson and Wall St., the repairing of N. Franklin St., from the north side of Hayne St., to Mineral Point Ave., the cleaning of all gutters in the fourth ward and the laying of standard brick cross walks across Washington Ave., on the west side of Locust St., and also across Washington Ave., on the east side of Lincoln St., after the street on the north side of North St.

Reports accepted and placed on file were those of the city treasurer for the month of April and the street assessment committee on the paving of S. Main St., and curb and gutters on S. Washington St. Plans for the proposed new bridge at Spring Brook were also accepted and placed on file, as were the contracts and bonds of P. W. Ryan for mending work on Washington St., and Claude E. Snyder for curbs and gutters on the same.

On motion of Alderman Rehfeld, the contract for the city printing for the coming year was awarded to the Janesville Daily Gazette and the Gazette was also designated as the official city paper for the coming year.

Immediately after the reading of the official minutes, Mayor Carlo announced the appointment of W. E. Rehfeld, Charles E. Snyder and C. E. Tallman to fill vacancies in the ranks of the Janesville Fire Police caused by the resignation of Dr. Charles Sutherland, E. B. Helms and W. P. Sale. The appointments were confirmed by the council without dissent.

SILVER CUP TO BE GIVEN BEST BATTER

C. B. Conrad Offers Prize To Commercial League Player Making Most Hits During Season.

To promote interest in the national game in the city, and to bring out the best talent along that line, one of the most loyal devotees of baseball in Janesville, Charles B. Conrad, has offered a beautiful silver loving cup, to be given to the baseball player in the Commercial Baseball League, who makes the most hits during the season. Records made in the games previous to the opening of the season will not be allowed to count in the competition for the prize. The cup and the honor attached to winning it will probably bring out all the "heavy-hitters" in an effort to capture it.

LITERALLY TRUE.
"My goods speak for themselves."
"What are you selling?"
"Graphophones."

Fox Took a Ride.
A report from Winsted, Conn., states that while Ed Chittes, who runs a stage coach between Winsted and Sandfield, Mass., was driving in a blinding snowstorm, a fox jumped on the seat beside him. The exhausted animal dropped to the bottom of the coach, and after about ten minutes' rest jumped out and disappeared. Reheard threw two hounds which had been chasing him off the scent when he jumped into the coach.

Securing Polonium.
The grain and a half of polonium isolated by Mme. Curie, was obtained by treating several tons of pitchblende. While radium lasts a thousand years, the particle of polonium half disappears in 140 days, the products being helium and what seems to be lead.

Relic of Great Soldier Sold.
A lock of Napoleon's hair, cut by his servant on May 31, 1811, at the Hotel de Lutz, Brussels, was sold recently for four dollars at Stevens' auction rooms, Covent Garden, London.

Concrete Floors Injurious.
Opponents of the use of concrete for floors in factories contend that the stone-like surface is injurious to the feet and backs of workmen, and that the dust ground from the concrete finds its way into and injures the machine bearings.

Large Haul of Fish.
An extraordinary capture of gray mullet was made at Plymouth recently. The fish were found in the Great Western Railway company's graving dock at Millbay. The dock gates were closed and when the water was pumped out the fish were captured and sent to market. They weighed about 4½ tons and most of them were consigned to France.—London Times.

Amusing Snobbishness.
"One sort of snobbishness," says the Philosopher of Folly, "is where the wife of a tobacco magnate looks down on the wife of the man who got rich manufacturing cuspidors."

An Earth Tidal.
At the Potsdam observatory, Mr. O. Hecker, after several years' study with horizontal and vertical pendulums, announces the existence of periodic movements in the mass of the earth, originating like the ocean tides in the differential attractions of the sun and moon, and following similar laws. The average change of level produced is said to be about eight inches. It is not certain that this can have any perceptible effect on the occurrence of earthquake phenomena.

Miss Nellie Folli. Says Dress Leads

All. The modern woman and dress. This is a subject of endless interest and when a woman is pretty Nellie Folli, who has one of the leading fashion parts in the city, she expresses her views on dress. The subject assumes a new interest. For she is one of the women who have been demanded to wear elaborate gowns and also among those who set fashions in private life.

"I think dress is one of the most important and necessary things in woman's life. She must always dress attractively and make herself beautiful and sweet in every detail of dress and person." But it was suggested some women do not have the means to dress elaborately.

"If you were one of them what would you do?" "If I had a little, only a very little I would think," she replied and a tiny frown emphasized the effect that would ensue. "It would be so careful and plan so. If I could have only two dresses a year one would be a fully smart skirt and jacket and I could dict has been that, original, dominant and fascinating as Mr. Moody's play is, the author is under an overwhelming debt to Mr. Miller for the superb and illuminating way in which he developed his artistic possibilities, and to his superb company for their remarkable portrayal of the difficult characters. "The Great Divide" could easily have been ruined by less sympathetic presentation than was given under the palatial direction of Mr. Miller. The play is in three acts, the first two being represented as taking place in Arizona and the third in Massachusetts. In a way the drama is a conflict between the spirit of the East and the spirit of the West. An Eastern woman, weighted down by generations of tradition and conventionality, is strangely won by a Western man unfettered by custom and ignorant of restraint of mind and action. The meeting of these opposite natures provokes great storm and stress, and raises many intensely interesting and highly dramatic situations. One must see this masterful exposition of American manhood and womanhood as portrayed in this really great play to un-vary the effects by wearing different waders, and another would be an evening gown. A common fault on the stage is over-dressing. Personality is thus entirely crowded out. I never wear jewels on the stage for just that reason. The flash and glitter would attract and hold the eye and the hands would call for as much attention as the face. The greatest art is the art of getting into and getting out of a picture at the right time. Simplicity is the keynote of good dressing both on and off the stage. The best dressed man I ever knew wore nothing that I could describe. The air of being dressed-up is the horror of women or men of good taste. The well dressed woman as an art is possessed of something that cannot be described. She must know instinctively how to wear clothes and it is an attribute that can neither be taught or acquired. It is the individuality that impresses first, the gown afterward.

"Miss Nobody from Starland" will be seen here in its entirety direct from its glowing success of an entire season's run at the Princess Theatre, Chicago, on Thursday, May 19, at Myers Theatre and this will be the last big attraction of the season.

Henry Miller, the distinguished actor-manager, will bring "The Great Divide," which has won recognition as "the long awaited great American play," to Myers Theatre tonight. The coming of this famous drama, which was presented at the Princess and Daly's theatres, New York, for over 500 performances, has for some time been held by our play-lovers as a bright spot in the indefinite theatrical future, and this positive announcement of the date of the engagement will be greeted with pleasure. "The Great Divide" has added much to the celebrity of Mr. Miller as a producing manager and brought from dramatic obscurity into permanent renown an author who will have to be reckoned with from now on in the American drama. William Vaughn Moody had already become established as this country's leading tragedian poet, and through his occupancy of the chair of English in the University of Chicago, his several publications relating to the language have long been quoted as an authority upon English literature. But until Mr. Miller produced "The Great Divide" even Mr. Moody's best friends never suspected that the brilliant young poet would write a play which would be not only the most successful of its time from a pecuniary standpoint, but which would be declared by leading critics to be "a new mark in American drama." GETS ALL THE JUICE

Squeezer Drains Lemons Dry and Keeps Seeds Out of Glass.

A squeezer device that will get all the juice out of a lemon and at the same time keep the seeds from getting in the beverage, has been designed by a New Jersey man. It is shown in the illustration and practically explains itself. The squeezer consists of two parts, a rubber cup and a plunger fitted inside. A lemon or orange is cut in two and placed in the cup, cut side down. The other member of the plunger rests so the fruit in the cup. By pressing the two handles together the fruit is squeezed until every drop of juice is out of it, and the juice may then be poured into pitcher or glass through the little lip which is seen on one side of the cup. The space through which the liquid flows is so small that a seed cannot pass through and the seeds, together with the skin of the lemon, can be dumped out afterward.

Ancient Mirrors.
A French investigator has lately interested the French Academy of Sciences in his researches concerning the glass mirrors which were used in ancient times in Egypt and in Thrace. They were backed with a highly polished metal, the nature of which has been in question. It has now been ascertained that the metal was almost pure lead, and it is believed that the method of manufacture was to

Foolish Procrastination

Said a young man to me lately, "I'm coming in just as soon as my tooth begins to ache."

What a mistake to let the teeth decay until the nerve in the center is exposed and is causing agony, before it is thought necessary to repair the trouble.

But better stop the trouble at once by having a neat filling put in and save all the pain and expense of nerve treatment.

An examination every six months by the dentist is none too often.

No charge for examination.

LECTURED ON COMET AND SOLAR SYSTEM

Rev. R. W. Roberts Delivered Timely and Highly Interesting Address at Presbyterian Church.

Rev. R. W. Roberts delivered an illuminating lecture on the solar system last evening at the Presbyterian church. He illustrated his description of the comets and other celestial bodies with stereoscopic views made from some of the finest photographs which the observatories of the country have produced. The sun spots, aspects of the moon, the volcanic craters and mountain ranges on the moon, the possibility of Mars being inhabited, and the rings of Saturn were brought into close range and all the theories relating to these phenomena expounded. Particular attention was devoted to comets, their paths, their origin, and their composition, and special reference was made to the various comets and facts regarding Halley's comet.

Mr. Roberts has been a student of the heavens for many years and has written articles on Halley's comet for recent issues of the Scientific American, Popular Astronomy, and the Chicago Tribune.

He brought his large refracting telescope to the city but atmospheric and other conditions were not favorable for any observations on the part of the audience. The speaker showed a very clear and complete knowledge of the subject he discussed and his audience was much interested in the science he discussed.

SENATOR FAIRCHILD VISITS JANESVILLE

Aspirant For the Republican Nomination for Governor Here on Political Mission.

State Senator T. Fairchild of Milwaukee, one of the five republican candidates for the gubernatorial nomination, is in Janesville today visiting with friends and making new acquaintances. Senator Fairchild arrived from Milwaukee at noon today and will remain in the city until tomorrow. He is the only one of the five candidates now in the field who has come out squarely on a platform, endorsing the present republican administration as personified by the Taft principles and is making many friends throughout the state on this stand. He has been a member of the legislature for several years and has a large acquaintance throughout the state.

Tom Moore Cigar

The Little Tom has the same grip on quality as the Tom Moore. Men who have grown used to the 10c size and who'd like the same mild good smoke at a nickel get a cigar half as big in the Little Tom. Never apart. Same dealers sell both sizes. "The Tom Moore when you have the dime; the Little Tom when you haven't the time."

CHAPTER XXXV.

The Proxy of Pakenham.

A man can not possess anything that is better than a good woman, nor anything that is worse than a bad one.—Homer.

When I reached the central part of the city, I did not hasten thence to Blumhert mansion. Instead, I returned to my hotel. I did not now care to see any of my friends or even to take up matters of business with my chief. It is not for me to tell what feelings came to me when I left Helena von Ritz.

Sleep such as I could gain, reflections such as were inevitable, occupied me for all that night. It was mid-morning of the following day when finally I once more sought out Mr. Calhoun.

He had not expected me, but received me gladly. It seemed that he had gone on about his own plans and with his own methods. "The Senora Yturrio is doing me the honor of an early morning call," he began. "She is with my daughter in another part of the house. As there is matter of some importance to come up, I shall ask you to attend."

He dispatched a servant, and presently the lady mentioned joined me. She was a pleasing picture enough in her robe of black lace and sulphur-colored silk, but her face was none too happy, and her eyes, it seemed to me, bore traces either of unrest or tears. Mr. Calhoun handed her to a chair, where she began to use her handkerchief but effective fan.

"Now, it gives us the greatest regret, my dear senora," began Mr. Calhoun, "to have Gen. Almonte and your husband return to their own country. We have valued their presence here very much, and I regret the disruption of the friendly relations between our countries."

She made any sort of gesture with her fan, and he went on: "It is the regret also of all my dear lady, that your husband seems so shamelessly to have abandoned you. I am quite aware, if you will allow me to be so frank, that you need some financial assistance."

"My country is ruined," said she. "Also, senor, I am ruined. As you say, I have no means of life. I have not even money to secure my passage home. That Senor Van Zandt—"

"Yes, Van Zandt did much for us, through your agency, senora. We have benefited by that, and I therefore regret he proved faithless to you personally. I am sorry to tell you that he has signified his wish to join our army against your country. I hear also that your late friend, Mr. Polk, has forgotten most of his promises to you."

"I am not alone," she broke out. "He broke his promise to Senor Van Zandt, to my husband, to me!"

Calhoun smiled in his grim fashion. "I am not surprised to hear all that, my dear lady, for you but point out a known characteristic of that gentleman. He has made me many promises which he has forgotten, and offered me even of late distinguished honors which he never meant me to accept. But, since I have been personally responsible for many of these things which have gone forward, I wish to make what personal amends I can; and over I shall thank you for the good which you have done to this country. Believe me, madam, you satiated. "You say Mrs. Gillington's ex-husband is content with the divorce?" "Yes," answered Mrs. Cayenne. "He says the divorce doesn't amount to nearly as much as he would have been willing to pay in order to reach the same understanding."

Horned Snake in South Carolina. James M. Henderson killed a horned snake at his home, near Bush river, on the Belfast road, on Tuesday. It was about two feet long and lying on a stump in the field. At the end of its tail was a horn, something like a rooster's spur.—Newberry Observer.

The Optimist's Corner

Daily Helps to Health and Happiness

By GEORGE F. BUTLER, A.M.M.D.

It is the aim of every thoughtful mother to bring up her daughter in such a way as to faithfully and honorably fulfill the duties of a wife when she comes to marry the man of her choice, but it seldom occurs to either parent to train a young son with the same praiseworthy intention, and the boy is too often allowed to grow up thoughtless, selfish and sometimes even vicious. A boy over-indulged in youth, waited upon by mother and sisters, invariably grows into a selfish man, who demands that everyone should give way to his own undisciplined desires. The result is seen in the pages of every newspaper we take up. Homes are wrecked and wives weakened and worn with the long strain of misery and neglect, fill an early grave—or a worse fate befalls them.

This sad state of things could be greatly minimized if parents would look into the future and train their boys to be honorable in all their dealings and to weed out every trace of selfishness or vice before the roots are firmly fixed. Many an aged mother has reason to be thankful that she had so brought up her boy when she looks around upon his happy and prosperous home and sees the content which reigns therein.

Never was a court at all, only a private meeting in the office of a discredited and disowned leader in a republican government. Her costume and her bearing were Helena von Ritz's answer to a woman's fate! A deep color flamed in her cheeks. She stood with head erect and lips smiling bravely. Her curtsy was grace itself. Her dingy little office was glorified.

"I interrupt you, gentlemen," she began.

"On the contrary, I am sure, my dear lady," said Dr. Ward, "Senator Calhoun told me he wished you to meet Senora Yturrio."

"Yes," resumed Calhoun, "I was just speaking with this lady over some matters concerning with this little slipper." He smiled as he held it up gingerly between thumb and finger. "Do you recognize it, Madam Baroness?"

"Ah, my little shoe!" she exclaimed. "But see, it has not been well cared for."

"It traveled in my war bag from Oregon to Washington," said I. "Perhaps bullet molds and powder fumes may have damaged it."

"It still would serve as a little post-office, perhaps," laughed the baroness. "But I think its days are done on such errands."

"I will explain something of these errands to the Senora Yturrio," said Calhoun. "I wish you personally to say to that lady, if you will, that Senora Yturrio regarded this little receptacle rather as official than personal post."

For one moment these two women looked at each other, with that on their faces which would be hard to describe. At last the baroness spoke:

"It is not wholly my fault, Senora Yturrio, if your husband gave you cause to think there was more than diplomacy between us. At least, I can say to you that it was the sport of it alone, the intrigue, if you please, which interested me. I trust you will not accuse me beyond that."

A stifled exclamation came from the Dona Lucrecia. I have never seen more address nor yet more hatred on a human face than hers displayed. I have said that she was not a thoroughbred. She arose now, proud as ever, it is true, but vicious. She declined Helena von Ritz's outstretched hand, and swept us a curtsey. "Adios!" said she. "I go!"
